Hi Sandra,

Yes, the course would be $5,000 and Chase would have an additional $75-$90 to be paid to the DPS once he passes our course.

In event he dose not pass, he will have 2 other chances to the test with us. If by the second fail, we will have a conversation about him needing an additional week. This is very uncommon for our students but I understand the question/concern.

Thank you,

Good Morning Christina, I would like to get started on getting Chase Catoire setup for CDL Class A. He already has a tanker endorsement and he will do the manual transmission. This will go on the January 26th Court for approval. We are looking for him to start on February 2nd. I would also like to confirm cost of the course is $5,000.00 and there will be a fee to be paid by Chase of $75--$90.00 to the DPS. I do have a copy all of the documents needed for the course.

Also, what happens if he does not pass it, will they continue working with him or will there be an additional fee.
